

art of freedom

COMPETITION

2020 is the year that the Netherlands celebrate 75 years of freedom. Because of this special anniversary, the Lava Legato foundation organises a competition. To participate you need to create a canvas on royal-playground.com centred around the theme Freedom. The website is developed by Lava Legato.

The theme Freedom is broadly defined and can relate to anything that you consider (lack of) freedom. The tool presented on the royal-playground.com website gives you loads of possibilities. You can use toy objects that are presented on the website, but you can also use own pictures and text. This means that your canvas can for instance also be centred around a self written poem. You can even upload your own work as background and choose not to make use of the toy objects that are available.

In order to participate you need to register on the royal-playground.com website. The deadline for the application is 31st October, 2020. Results are communicated on 1 December 2020. On the royal playground website you will find more information on how to apply.

There are two prizes to win:

Participants under 18 years old:

An art tool kit with materials, including markers, brushes, paints, coloring pencils and paper worth € 150,00.

Participants of 18 years and older:

A weekend trip to Rotterdam for two people, including travel expenses up to € 150,00 per person, a double room for two nights, a city tour that highlights elements that are related to freedom and two free tickets to the exhibition Art Can Be Anything about imagination and freedom in the Chabot museum.

By participating in the contest you accept the rules and regulations of the Art of Freedom competition that can be downloaded from royal-playground.com.
